The following documents, legal and otherwise, represent the collective and evolving experience of the housing movement. The chapters represent the basic principles, methodologies and systems used to house over a million low-income families under Millard and Linda Fuller's leadership. They also include the wisdom gathered from communities, collaborative partners, partner families and volunteers. And because these documents have been gleaned from so many different resources, it is important that they remain freely available to all who need them.

What we do ask of our Covenant Partners is to respect the terms of the Covenant Partnership Agreement. We must insist that neither The Fuller Center brand nor logo be attached to government-funded projects (except within the terms outlined in the Covenant Agreement), mortgages that charge interest, or rental and other for-profit ventures.

Keeping the Operations Manual available online serves several important purposes. We limit our consumption of paper. Learning to be better stewards of the earth's resources is an increasingly important part of this ministry. Covenant Partners can download and print documents only when they're needed and in the quantities necessary. Additionally, changes can be made and disseminated quickly. And we anticipate many additions to the Manual as your experiences and suggestions help the ministry evolve and improve.
